

Arnold Foda

Arnold is a Research Volunteer for Youth Underground. He is currently working as a paralegal in New York, focusing on international arbitration, criminal justice reform, the defense of free speech and domestic violence accountability. Previously, Arnold worked as an investigator at UC Berkeley's Human Rights Center, using open-source intelligence techniques to authenticate human rights violations and war crimes across the globe. He also served as an Immigration Research Fellow and Teaching Assistant, analyzing the gaps in service provision for immigrants in Northern California. Throughout his undergraduate studies, Arnold has developed extensive research experience in gender-based violence, diplomatic affairs and human rights advocacy in Berlin, Cairo, Geneva, Paris and Berkeley. He graduated from the Dual Bachelor's Degree between Sciences Po Paris and UC Berkeley, majoring in political science and human rights.

Born in Geneva to a German mother and an Egyptian father, Arnold spent his childhood living in multiple countries in Europe, the Middle East and the United States. Passionate about promoting feminism and advancing sexual rights, his research seeks to raise awareness on human trafficking through a gender lens.
